NEW PRODUCTS

SLIDING PANELS

The all-new 5S sliding panel system for Spider® Shelving opens up a world of possibilities! With a load capacity of 300lb. per panel, you can use them to store a wide range of items: tools, straps, cables, pipes, gaskets, etc. Explore the options on pages 103 and 109.

PROTECTIVE SCREEN

This screen can be installed on service advisor desks to protect customers and employees when adequate physical distancing is difficult to maintain. It is quick and easy to install on existing desks as well as new ones. See this product on page 93.

BATTERY RACK

With our new battery rack, batteries slide more smoothly, and it is easier to grab hold of them. The rack also prevents premature wear of the tie bars. The slick polyester paint creates a slippery surface, while a stopper plate makes it easier to grip batteries by removing pressure on the first battery and creating more room for fingers. FACTORS TO CONSIDER

The first step in creating an optimal storage solution is to list all the tools and items to be stored. You can't store all these items in the same cabinet, drawer or shelf, so you need to categorize them.

To do this, there are four factors and four reach zones to consider when organizing your storage solution.

1- FREQUENCY OF USE

It's important to know how often your tools are used. This generally determines the location of your equipment. We can divide frequency of use into four categories: frequent, average, occasional and specific. We recommend storing frequently used items in easy-to-reach zones (green and yellow).

2- IMPORTANCE OF QUICK IDENTIFICATION

We recommend using the 5S methodology for organizing your tools. Items that need to be found or used quickly should be placed in easy-to-reach zones.
3- SIZE AND WEIGHT

The weight of items handled is an other important factor to take into account. By considering this in conjunction with frequency of use, it's easier to determine the best storage location. A heavy item used frequently should always be stored where the risk of injury is lowest. This will rule out zones that are too high or too low. However, a less ergonomic location is suitable if the heavy item is not used frequently. We should only be retrieving light items in high-reach zones.

4- PURPOSE AND CATEGORY

In some situations, you might want to group several items together according to type or how they are used. For example, you may want to group all screwdrivers together in the same drawer, even if you don't use all sizes with the same frequency.

STORING AND ORGANIZING ITEMS

Place your items in the storage solution according to these four factors within the four zones shown here. In this illustration, we have used a person of average height. We recommend using a 50th percentile adult when more than one person works in the same space. See technical guide R69 for ergonomic designs for taller or smaller people.

CREATE YOUR OWN WORKCENTER

5 EASY STEPS

Our specialists will work with you to evaluate the best configurations for your situation.
They will take into consideration many different factors by asking various questions:

- What is the total amount of space available?
- Is computer access required?
- How much space is needed for tools?
- Where do the reels come from (air, electricity, oil, etc.)?

- How much space is needed for storage of bulky items?
- What type of lift do you use (integrated or posts, what brand)?
- Do you need task lighting?
- Etc.

In just five steps, we can help you create your own layout quickly and easily. The following pages take you through these steps.

SEE THE DIFFERENCE...

HOW TO CREATE YOUR OWN WORKCENTER

CABINET FOR TWO USERS

Sharing toolboxes between two users is now easy with two-user access. Available for multi-drawer toolboxes and the R2V Vertical Storage System, two-user access allows each technician to lock their own bank of drawers individually. This solution is ideal when two employees share the same workstation and floor space is a challenge. Furthermore, by stacking R2V storage over an R toolbox, you can increase the number of tools stored without using any extra floor space.

- Widths available: 48" and 60"
- Two locks and two distinct locking mechanisms for each housing
- L3 standard lock or L50 electronic lock available
- Drawer banks split in two equal parts, from left to right

Ferrari Maserati Québec (QC)

We know every dealership is unique, which is why we offer a range of reel cabinets that vary according to the number of reels required and where they are placed.

- All our cabinets include a door and/or front panel for easy access and maintenance (optional lock available)
- Removable drip tray included
- Widths: 24", 30", 36" and 48"
- Heights: 30", 38" and 72" (without base)
- 4"H base and quick access panel: painted or stainless steel

CONSIDERATIONS

Placement of service reels is a very important consideration to achieve the optimal configuration for a technician's workcenter. When reels are to be integrated into the workcenter, we help you determine the best place to store them.

After analyzing technicians' movements between the workcenter and vehicle, we have the following recommendations:

- Place toolboxes near to the technician, under the work surface
- Place reel cabinets in direct line with the automobile, beside the work surface. The reels will therefore not block access to the work surface
- If many different tools are used, we recommend storing the most frequently used tools below the work surface and others in toolboxes at the sides of the work surface

The technician's overall efficiency is increased when there is fast and easy access to tools, and direct and safe access to service reels.
